BALL PLAYER, BROTHER HELD AS SLAYERS

Arrested in Detroit, Mich.: Clarence McCumber Dies from Wounds.

SPECIAL JURY CALLED

Joe and Pete Nichols Face First Degree Murder Charges.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Oct. 20—Joe Nichols, 32, semi-professional baseball player, and his brother, Pete, 21, were arrested today at Detroit for investigation into the slaying Sunday of Clarence McCracken, 32, a Kenton restaurant operator, police here announced.

As authorities left for Detroit to return the men here for arraignment on a first degree murder charge, a special session of the Hardin county grand jury was called for Monday to consider the case.

Officials said the taxicab which the brothers escaped in after the shooting was abandoned at Payne, Paulding county. They said the shotgun, used in the shooting, was thrown away near Payne.

McCracken died from shotgun wounds received in the leg above the knee and in the body as he stood opposite his place conversing with S. T. Temple, a neighbor and his landlord.

A second slaying in Hardin county within the last 24 hours was reported to authorities here. Lewis Danner, 54, was fatally wounded by his brother-in-law, Roy Allerding at Ada. Allerding is not being held.

Two Identify Slayer

McCracken, before he died, and Temple identified Joe Nichols as the one who fired the fatal shot. He did not know his companion Hardin County Coroner Floyd M Elliott of Ada, following an autopsy last night declared death due to gangrene caused by wounds from a shotgun discharge.

Prosecutor Harry L. Kaylor said today that first degree murder charges would be filed.

Preceding the shooting of McCracken his place of business was riddled with shotgun and revolver shots evidently in an attempt to get him. Police said the shooting was an aftermath of a quarrel between McCracken and Joe Nichols last Tuesday when McCracken allegedly struck Nichols over the head with a glass.

Temple, standing near McCracken when he was shot down, escaped uninjured. The brothers are also wanted for questioning in connection with the theft of a shotgun from a Kenton home preceding the shooting and the abduction of a taxi driver, Russell Johnson, and the theft of his car after he had been bound, gagged and tied to a fence south of Kenton, police say.

Private funeral services for McCracken will be held Wednesday.

MAN FATALLY SHOT

Coroner Returns Verdict of Justifiable Homicide in Slaying.

By The Associated Press

ADA, O., Oct. 20—Lewis Danner, 54, was fatally shot early today by his brother-in-law, Roy Allerding, 33, during a family argument.

According to police Danner was divorced from his wife three years ago and blamed Allerding for the trouble. Late last night he visited his wife, who was living with her brother. Armed with an ax and pistol Danner broke down the door and threatened to shoot his former wife.

Allerding appeared and Danner, police say, attempted to shoot him, but the pistol jammed. Danner ran into a bedroom and Allerding shot through the door, the bullet entering Danner's heart.

Coroner Floyd Elliott today returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. Allerding is not being held.

Great and Unknown Alike in Thousands Passing Bier of Inventor.

FINAL RITES WEDNESDAY

World Leaders Send Messages of Condolence to Bereaved Family.

By The Associated Press

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 20—The body of Thomas Alva Edison lay in state today, while thousands—the great and the unknown—paid homage and tribute.

He rested in the library of his laboratory, in the little room where with test tube or pencil so many of his wizardries of science took shape.

More than 10,000 persons—school children, Edison employes, relatives and the curious—had waited in a long line throughout yesterday to file into the little room.

The inventor will be buried in West Orange tomorrow. Final arrangements have not been announced, but it was thought Rev. Arthur H. Brown, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Orange would officiate. Final services will be at the grave in Rosedale cemetery. The funeral service hour is 2:30 p. m.

Hoover Plans Uncertain

President Hoover was still undecided today on his plan to attend the funeral. It was indicated he would reach a decision tonight.

Meanwhile a public demand for a national tribute to Mr. Edison's memory has swept the country.

Acting Governor Wolber of New Jersey proclaimed that all electric lights in the state—in homes, streets or afactories—be extinguished at 7 p. m. for one minute tomorrow as a reminder of what life would have been without Mr. Edison's invention of the incandescent bulb.

Several railroads and industrial concerns have announced they will suspend operations for one minute in honor of the inventor.

In New York and in many other cities, flags were ordered at half mast.

SEEK DOCTOR'S WIFE AS SLAYER OF 2 WOMEN

Bodies Found in Trunks at Railway Station in Los Angeles.

SHIPPED FROM ARIZONA

Suspect Flees After Calling To Claim Trunks; Brother Quizzed.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 20—An admission that his sister had confessed to him the killing of two companions in Phoenix, Arizona, was made today to The Associated Press by R. J. McKinnell, Los Angeles university student, and brother of the suspected slayer, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd. McKinnell made a positive statement after a series of reports had been circulated in which police denied the young man's alleged statement.

Stopping in a corridor of the homicide bureau of the police department as detectives took him to breakfast, McKinnell told his version of the discovery of the bodies of Mrs. Agnes Leroi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, employes of a Phoenix, Ariz., clinic, in two trunks and a valise at a railroad station here yesterday.

A baggage master, who saw blood seeping from one trunk demanded that it be opened. Mrs Judd, who had arrived in Los Angeles a short time before on another train, came to the station with McKinnell to claim the baggage. She told the agent that she did not have the keys and would get them. The suspicion of the agent led him to note the license number of McKinnell's automobile and the student was arrested.

Knew of Contents

"I knew what was in those trunks," the young man said. "She told me. I can't understand why she did it. I drove her to Sixth and Broadway and she got out. I gave her $5 and she disappeared in the street crowds."

Dr. W. C. Judd, husband of the woman, who appeared calm and composed under the grilling of detectives and who was taken into custody with McKinnell, said:

"I believe she was mentally deranged."

McKinnell said his home was in Darlington, Ind., where his parents were living.

About 7 a. m. yesterday, his sister arrived here and telephoned him while he was at his classes. She asked him to meet her and told him she had a "couple of trunks at the railroad station."

"She said she wanted me to drive down and get the trunks and take them to the ocean and dump them in deep water."

Search for Judd, ran against a blank wall today when a woman suspect, questioned aboard a train in Arizona, proved her innocence.

Operatives of the Southern Pacific railroad took the suspect into custody at Yuma, Arizona, but on their arrival at Phoenix they announced that she was not Mrs. Judd, believed by police to be the slayer.

The collapse of this clue left police with a baffling hunt before them. She had not been seen since last night. Her brother, R. J. McKinnell, said she left his automobile in downtown Broadway after fleeing from the station.

The suspicion of the agents put the woman to flight and she hurried from the station with her brother driving her. In the brief interval between the departure from the station and the time McKinnell set for her disappearance from his automobile, a confusion of reports was at hand on what transpired between the two, and police had no plausible motive for the crimes.

Dr. W. C. Judd, husband of the missing woman, shocked and unnerved at the horrible act, said she had lived with the two women but

TWO SLAIN IN BANK HOLDUP

Robber and Son of Wisconsin Bank President Meet Death.

SECOND SON WOUNDED

Posse Pursues Gang That Overpowers 16 Persons in Bank.

By The Associated Press

MENOMONIE, Wis., Oct. 20—An assistant cashier and a rubber were killed as four machine gun raiders looted the Kraft state bank of an undetermined amount of money today.

James Kraft, 19, son of W. F. Kraft, president of the bank, was kidnaped and slain by the bandits, while W. H. Kraft, 22, another son, was wounded, not seriously, because he failed to point out where more money was.

The rubber was killed by shots fired at the car in which the quartet shot out of town after spraying the street near the bank with machine gun bullets.

Bank officials said a hurried check indicated the robbers took about $10,000 after overpowering 16 persons in the bank, including six customers.

The bodies of James Kraft and the bandit were found on the highway six miles from here by possemen who followed the raiders out of town.

The younger Kraft had been shot. Officers believed he was slain in reprisal, after pursuers' bullets killed their companion.

AUTOMOBILE RADIOS BECOMING POPULAR

Interest in the automobile radio is rapidly reaching a point in this country where it may be expected to become standard equipment on practically every car within the next two years.

The growing acceptance and demand for this form of radio entertainment is chiefly due to improved receivers which employ tubes especially designed to withstand the rigorous conditions imposed by this type of service.

BATTLE OF BARITONES

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK—The "battle of the baritones" is raging.

It sounds rather warlike, but it's merely another evidence of the keen rivalry constantly being displayed by the two nation-wide radio networks.

On one side is WEAF - WJZ - NBC, and on the other is the WABC - CBS group.

At the start the National Broadcasting company seemed to have a slight edge, for it got its baritone on the air first. He is Russ Columbo, who before it was announced that the Columbia system had signed Bing Crosby had a spot or two a week. Now he is on nightly. Both singers hail from the Pacific coast.

CBS was somewhat handicapped in starting its baritone because he suffered a sudden throat attack and had to postpone his opening program.

But this activity is only a part of the skirmishing. It involves radio stations as well as artists. Recently in the station line came the announcement by NBC that it had bought part of the stock of WMAQ, Chicago, and would take over supervision of the station November 1.

WMAQ has been associated with CBS since the opening of the chain three years ago.

Acquisition of WMAQ also brings closer to the NBC fold WENAP the television station associated with WMAQ. It uses a transmission system somewhat different from those of other experimental stations in the east.

Getting back to the artist situation, it is recalled that Kate Smith, now with CBS, once sang on NBC. Now Jack Crawford, formerly with CBS, switches over to NBC.

So goes the battle.

TUNING IMPORTANT RECEPTION FACTOR

Properly tuning the receiver is vitally important in obtaining maximum quality of reception. Very few people are familiar with the fact that to obtain the best reproduction it is desirable to tune-in exactly on a station.

The average person turns the dial of the receiver until the station comes in at sufficient strength to suit his own individual taste and then leaves it that way. In so doing, however, he fails to realize that the set may be tuned considerably off the proper wave length. The result is distortion of the program, with frequent accompaniment of extraneous noise. In tuning-in a program, it is always advisable to adjust the tuning dial for the maximum signal strength with the volume control set low, and to then adjust the volume of desired intensity.

"Perfect" Vacuum.

The modern little radio tube which is utilized every day in millions of receiving sets throughout the world is said to have one of the most perfect vacuums of any commercial product ever placed upon the market. In fact so complete is this vacuum that there is no existing time element by which the life span of a living creature could be measured if it were subjected to such vacuum.

TELEVISION LICENSE APPLICATIONS MADE

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON—Broadcast stations in increasing numbers are getting "picture track" practice in preparation for the debut of television as an entertainment medium.

Twenty applications for visual station licenses are pending before the federal radio commission. Ten were filed by operators of sound program stations in various parts of the country.

Television stations in operation or with construction permits now total 32. While many of them are located in the New York metropolitan area, Boston, Washington, Pittsburgh, Schenectady, Chicago, Milwaukee, Los Angeles and Lafayette, Ind., have picture transmitters in operation or in the process of construction.

BEAUTY PARLORS IN ENGLAND PROSPER

Hundreds of Clients Pay on Average of $600 Yearly.

By United Press
LONDON—Ten Mayfair beauty parlors have over a thousand regular clients who spend more than $600 a year each to keep face and figure attractive.

Many clients spend more than this, and then there are the occasional visitors, who spend between $25 and $100 during a single session. Several beauty establishments list callers who weekly spend about $1,300 a year. These figures show the necessity of introducing new vogues every month or two.

Platinum hair, picture finger and toe nails, a new curl, extreme styles of cutting and waving the hair, delicate $5 butterfly lips, and tattooing bees over moles and other blemishes, or garters on legs, are but a few of the recent style decrees and "money pullers."

It may be painless extraction, but it is evidently quite thorough.

Fashionable beauty parlors maintain excellent gymnasiums and serve meals. The Hollywood diet was first introduced in London by Westend beauty salons.

Establishments where beauty is manufactured and retained operate with healthy activity and efficiency. Time schedules are maintained and a patron knows that she can arrive and depart at a fixed time and still treat her face and figure to the care and attention that fashion demands and money secures.

Buckeyes Loom as Toughest Foe on Wildcat Schedule

LINE STRENGTH TO DECIDE WINNER OF OHIO-PURPLE FRAY

Northwestern Must Be at Peak To Stop Buckeye Running Attack.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 — With the other summer book favorites, Michigan and Purdue belted out of the championship, Northwestern is faced with the rather unique situation of reaching the climax of its Big Ten season in its first game

The Wildcats scorning practice games have devoted their first three dates to battle with Nebraska Notre Dame and the University of California's southern branch. Saturday they will tackle as their first conference foe, Ohio State, and they probably won't encounter anything tougher than the Buckeyes on the rest of their schedule

If Northwestern gets by Ohio State there appears to be nothing to prevent another perfect record

Meets Tough Foes

A victory for Ohio would not end the Buckeyes' serious troubles, for they must meet Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin

Both Ohio and Northwestern employ the double wingback system of offensive and the contest probably will be decided in favor of the club with the strongest line Northwestern's forwards have been rated as the equal of anything in the midwest

Injuries have dimmed Purdue's hope of scoring a victory for the west over Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh this week When the roll was called after the Wisconsin defeat, Yunevich and Horstman, fullbacks, White and Pardonner, quarterbacks, Risk and Purvis, halfbacks, and Leisinger and Volmoff, guards, reported injuries of painful nature Wisconsin got out without casualties and the Badgers will be ripe for a big attempt to make it two in a row over Pennsylvania Saturday Indiana and Iowa also emerged from their scrimmage tilts in good shape, although it was demonstrated that each is woefully shy of capable reserves. The Hoosiers will be in about the same shape as Chicago when they meet Saturday, as far as replacements are concerned.

Iowa Meets Gophers

Iowa will meet Minnesota, but does not figure to win the Gophers having had two weeks during which to prepare for the contest.

Michigan's unexpected defeat by Ohio State has caused Fielding H Yost to come out of semi-retirement and take a more active part in assisting Harry Kipke prepare for Saturday's match with Illinois Illinois still is somewhat of a mystery, Bob Zuppke not having had time to get his sophomores ready for their best

Notre Dames has not permitted the 62 to 0 march through Drake make any difference in preparation for Pittsburgh Hunk Anderson yesterday passed up the regular Monday rest to give his line a thorough going over in anticipation of its meeting with Pitt's powerful forwards

Alvin Ulbrickson, youthful head coach and former oarsman of the University of Washington crew, has signed a new three-year contract at his alma mater

Leads Scorers

Bob Monnett, former gridiron luminary of Bucyrus High school, now a student at Michigan State college, is leading the nation's scorers in football to this date with a total of 54 points. Monnett is a halfback on the Michigan state team. Harding High school team members of a few years back will remember Monnett well for his play in the North Central Ohio league

FOUR PLAYERS TIED FOR SCORING HONORS

By United Press

Wallace Roudebush Miami quarterback, was next high scorer with 26 points

Dave Samuelson of Case Colin Lanning of Wittenberg, Wing of Baldwin-Wallace and Terry of Wilberforce, each had 24 points

The leading scorers and the number of points made by each follow

Schnur, Dayton	5	0	30

REED WINNER OVER ALEX WILLIAMS ON SHOVEL GROAN CARD

600 See Oregon Welter Outfox N. Y. Dutchman; Bozinis Wins Semi-Final.

BY KARL K. McELROY

'East is east and west is west and never the twain shall meet'

The twain met last night before a near capacity house at the Steam Shovel gym when Robin Reed of Reedsport Ore took on Alex Williams the New York Dutchman, in the main go of an all star wrestling card More than 600 fans witnessed the match.

The match will be etched upon Reed's mind as one of the toughest battles in which he has participated Reed won, yes but his margin of victory was so slight that he is not likely to write to the home folks about it

Plenty Tough

Williams is one of the toughest and strongest little welterweights to show here The Dutchman won the first fall in 21 minutes after wearing the Olympic champion down with five full nelsons Reed was pinned with a body scissors

Reed discovered that the best way to wrestle Williams was to stay away from him Every time the Robin got in close he came out on the wrong end of the deal A head scissors nearly had him out in the second fall but he managed to stall long enough behind Referee Ed Holt to recover his senses He threw Williams through the ropes and took the fall in 14 minutes when the latter was dazed by the fall to the floor

Reed continued on the defensive and took the fall in 12 minutes and 30 seconds with an airplane spin followed by a slam

Bozinis Is Winner

Nick Bozinis, the roughhouse Greek, took two falls to do Jack Murphy tip brown in the semi-final A body slam and a giant swing gave him the first in 10 minutes Murphy lasted four and a half minutes in the second and Bozinis won with a slam

Jerry Miller pinned Pete Cocherel with a cradle hold in the preliminary The match lasted 11 minutes

* * *

Cyclone Clyde Robinson and Gentle John Kilonis may meet on the main go of next week's mat card, it was announced last night. Robinson and Kilonis are the two roughest mat pressers who have ever appeared in the local ring If they are brought together fans will be assured of an interesting evening

* * *

Robin Reed is seeking a match with Jack Reynolds for the welter weight championship Reed says Reynolds is afraid to meet him A Flint, Mich, paper, it was reported last night, attempted to match the two leaders but Reynolds refused He said he had beaten Reed four years ago and as far as he was concerned, that settled it

WILLAMAN PLANS NO CHANGES IN LINEUP

Buckeye Coach Confident He Has Discovered Strongest Possible Eleven.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O, Oct. 20—Satisfied he has found the organization he has been seeking since the first of the year Coach Sam Willaman of the Ohio State university football squad will make no changes in the personnel of his team this week as he prepares to meet Northwestern Saturday

Most of the week will be spent in perfecting new and intricate plays with which the Ohio coaches hope to combat the Purple's speed plunging and aerial offensive

Much time will be spent at each practice session in instructing the backfield men how to hold onto the ball after they have been tackled

Many of the players were badly bruised but unless additional injuries crop up this week Ohio will be able to present its strongest lineup against the Wildcats

Injured Bishop Regulars Ready To Play Again

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 20—Injured members of the Ohio Wesley an varsity squad who didn't have an opportunity to play against Denison in the Bishops' first Buckeye conference game last Saturday probably will be in shape for the Miami homecoming contest here next Saturday, it appeared today following Monday's workout.

Howard Chaves, Springfield fullback, who took part in only one play against Denison, and Rod Campbell Elmira, N Y, halfback who wasn't even in uniform for the Denison tussle appear improved this week after their rest and both may resume their places in the starting lineup when the team faces the Miami Redskins

Edgar Westfall of Dayton, sensational Bishop quarterback, was suffering from injuries when he went into the Denison game Saturday, but from the way he played no one noticed his ailments for Westfall not only scored three touchdowns but he punted and passed as well He is expected to be completely recovered and ready for Miami

While this trio of regular backs is on the road to recovery, two new casualties were added to the list Johnny Raugh of Altoona, Pa. guard is in the hospital with injuries sustained in the Denison conflict, and Jack McIlvain, Cleveland sophomore guard, appears to be lost to the squad for the season due to injuries that refuse to mend

Coach George Gauthier is brushing up on the team's pass defense since it was the Bishops' weakness in this department of play which enabled Denison to score on them last Saturday Miami, he fears will bombard the Bishop secondary by the air route and he wants to stop the Redskins' attempts to gain by that method if possible

May Guide Bucs

Art Griggs, owner and manager of the Wichita club of the Western league, is mentioned as a possible successor to Jewel Ens as pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates Ens recently resigned his post after the Bucs had completed a poor season.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MAY CHANGE BALL

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 20—When the 1932 major league season rolls around the American league may be using the style of baseball adopted by the National league last season.

President William Harridge may recommend a change to the sphere with the embossed seams and thicker hide at the annual meeting of the major league December 10

National league club owners for the most part were well satisfied with the new ball.

Stribling Returns.

WICHITA Kas, Oct. 20—W L. Ruggirello was dropped to the canvas four times in the brief encounter

"Hunk" Fears Pitt.

By United Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind Oct. 20—Coach Heartly Anderson expects one of Notre Dame's hardest games of the season when Pittsburg invades South Bend Saturday Anderson rates Pittsburgh's line as stronger than Northwestern's, basing his opinion on information brought back to him by Notre Dame scouts.

My WINNING PLAY

Southern Methodist university football teams are known throughout the country for their celebrated overhead game. In this, the fifth of a series of football articles, written by famous coaches themselves, Ray Morrison, Mustang coach, describes a spinner play used when the defense is spread to stop passes.

* * *

BY RAY MORRISON
(Head Football Coach, Southern Methodist University)
By The Associated Press

DALLAS—My Southern Methodist University Mustangs will use the spin play again this season We have used this play for several years because it has always been especially effective against a six man line that most teams use against my team because of our passing threat

Hubert Walling was the first and one of the best backs I had on this play He was with my teams of 1922, 1923 1924 He wasn't exceedingly fast but had powerful legs and usually gained from seven to 22 yards This was what we called in those days, our perfect play

Requires Fast Man

Since Walling's time we haven't used it so often because our conference teams concentrated on a powerful defense for it But with a fast, shifty man in the spinner position, we have made some very long and timely gains in our most recent games

In a University of Texas game in which we trailed for three quarters and finally won 21 to 14 Gerald Mann, now a law student at Harvard, made our first touchdown of that game from Texas' 18-yard line on the spinner

In our 1927 game against Missouri, the first time Mann ran the play, he scored a touchdown from Missouri's 30-yard line

Nearly Always Works

Walling spun on his outside foot while Mann merely twisted his body, leaving his feet in their original position until he had to start a forward step Then he unwound his legs and was usually on his way

I have great confidence in this play in spite of the defensive systems that have been built against it. It has deception and works in beautifully with our constant aerial threat.

Weldon Mason, a speedy, thrifty backfield star, probably will be my best man on the spinner position this year on this particular play

Midwest Seeks To Square Self with Eastern Teams

BY HERBERT W BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—Eastern football teams hold a 2-0 lead over the Big Ten conference in their intersectional strife thus far this season but the mid westerners may square the count this week-end

Purdue's Boilermakers and the Badgers of Wisconsin will travel to meet Carnegie Tech and Pennsylvania, respectively this Saturday and a victory for both would cause no great surprise. If both do win the Big Ten will have ample revenge for the 27-0 beating Yale handed Chicago and the 20-0 verdict Pitt's Panthers gained at Iowa's expense

Present indications are that Wisconsin will 'take' Penn

Purdue's chances against Carnegie do not look so good. The Boilermakers took a bad pounding against Wisconsin and will be meeting a team that has had a two-weeks' rest from competition

These two games by no means exhaust the eastern intersectional schedule for this week The Texas Longhorns, champions of the Southwest conference, will meet Harvard at Cambridge, Marquette will play Boston College at Boston and Drake will tackle Fordham at New York Pitt in the meantime will be meeting Notre Dame at South Bend, and Georgetown will play Michigan State at East Lansing Friday games between Haskell and Temple at Philadelphia and West Virginia and Detroit at Detroit complete the major intersectional card.

Heading the "domestic" program will be the annual clash between Army and Yale at New Haven the duel of undefeated teams at New York between New York University and Colgate, and Princeton's tangle with Navy at Princeton

THREE CROWNS UP IN SINGLE FIGHT

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct 20—Three titles may be at stake when Tony Canzoneri and Kid Chocolate clash in a 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden Nov 20

Canzoneri's lightweight and junior welterweight championships will be on the block and if Tony should make 130 pounds Chocolate will be defending the junior lightweight crown he won from Benny Bass

Tony who won the lightweight championship by knocking out Al Singer here last winter added the junior welterweight title to his list when he knocked out Jack (Kid) Berg at Chicago

Injuries Hit Purple.

LOUGHRAN BATTERS RISKO TO DEFEAT

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20—Tommy Loughran Philadelphia heavyweight left jabbed his way to his third victory over Johnny Risko of Cleveland, last night in the 10 round feature of the arena card It was Tommy's eleventh straight win and placed him in line for a battle with Jack Sharkey for the right to meet Herr Max Schmeling

Loughran peppered a slightly injured left into Risko's jaw, time and again snapping his head back

"Ladies' Day" Sunday.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Oct 20—The Chicago Bears of the National pro football league will give "ladies' day" a try Sunday when they meet the Philadelphia Yellowjackets at Wrigley field The girls must write to the ladies' ticket office at Wrigley field sending self addressed, stamped envelopes to obtain two free guests for the game. It will be the first "ladies' day" in the history of the league

PRESIDENTS LAUNCH WEEK OF INTENSIVE PRACTICE SESSIONS

Sohyer Drills Team in Timing of Plays in Monday Workout.

Anxious to break into the victory column for the first time this season, Harding High school yesterday afternoon launched a week of intensive drills in preparation for the annual conflict Saturday with Bucyrus Coach Dewey Sohyer spent yesterday drilling his regulars in the better timing of their plays and in polishing up on fundamentals

Junior Clay, tackle and one of the mainstays of the Harding forward wall, was not in uniform for practice yesterday but it is thought he will be available for the game with Bucyrus. Clay suffered an injured ankle in the Findlay game With the exception of Clay all the others who played in the Findlay encounter came through in fairly good physical condition. Bob Mantz has a slightly injured knee but it is not expected to give much bother

Whether or not Dick Morgan will be able to return to the lineup of the Presidents against Bucyrus is problematical Morgan did not play against Findlay and has been nursing one injury or another ever since the first game of the season He reported for practice yesterday in uniform but did not do any hard work. It is probable he will do little scrimmaging this week and be held in reserve at Saturday's game However, should he be found in really good physical condition, he will probably start against Bucyrus.

STOCKS, BONDS PUSH HIGHER

Rails Lead Early Advance but Are Soon Joined by Other Issues.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—Both stocks and bonds pushed forward with renewed vigor today.

The drying up of liquidation during the recent period of hesitancy, and signs of renewed confidence abroad, were generally regarded as the basis of the new upturn.

Rails led the advance in shares in the early trading but were soon joined by other groups. There was an average rise of about 3 points in leading issues by early afternoon. Issues up 4 to more than 8 included American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Case, Eastman, New York Central, and Union Pacific. A wide assortment of shares gained 2 or more, including U S Steel, American Can, Sears Roebuck, National Biscuit, Pennsylvania, North American, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, and Du Pont. Trading was fairly lively in the morning, but quieted after midday.

Renewed purchases of bankers acceptances in this market by the bank of France were interpreted as indicating the recent flurry or irresponsible rumors abroad, together with bear attacks on the dollar, had subsided.

Call money held at 2½ per cent, but was available in the outside market at 2. Federal funds—excess balances of member banks at the reserve—were again easier, ruling at ¼ to ¼ of one per cent, against ⅜-½ yesterday.

CARNERA IS LISTED AS ARMY DESERTER

By United Press

PARIS, Oct. 20—Private Primo Carnera went on the French army lists today as a deserter when he failed to report to the 106th infantry regiment at Strasbourg as a naturalized French conscript soldier.

Army authorities said they were not surprised that Carnera did not report, for he had not complied with any of the physical examinations or other preliminary steps.

Orders have gone out to the police to arrest him upon sight in France and carry him under guard to the regimental guardhouse in Strasbourg.

COUNCIL PASSES BOND ORDINANCE

Takes Action at Special Meeting To Sell Securities for Welfare Work.

Another step in the issuing of $23,700 worth of bonds for poor relief was taken at a special meeting of city council last night, when an ordinance providing for the sale of the bonds was adopted.

The action of council followed the receipt of letters from both the state tax commission and the state welfare department, approving the city's application to sell the bonds under the Pringle-Roberts bill, passed by the legislature last March as an emergency relief measure.

It was also announced by City Solicitor Carter Patton last night that he had been given the assurance the bonds would be taken by the State Teacher's Retirement board, eliminating the delay which would have resulted had they been sold to a bonding company. The bonds will pay 5½ per cent and 23 will be in the denomination of $1,000 and one, $500.

Application to sell the bonds was filed with the state tax commission and the state welfare department immediately following the adoption of the Pringle-Roberts bill, but due to the fact that the city had not retired enough bonds to bring it within the one per cent limitation, the action was postponed until after the first of September when the semi-annual retirement of bonds placed it in this class.

More than half of the $23,700 to be received, has already been spent for poor relief purposes, it is said at the city hall, and unless the one mill levy, which comes before the voters at the November election, is approved, the situation, so far as the care of the unemployed is concerned, will become a most serious matter before spring.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough due to a cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else! It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germladen phlegm This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Seven Nations Have Air Program of $420,000,000

By International News Service

WASHINGTON—The world will spend nearly half a billion dollars in the air during the year ending next June 30,

Of a total of $420 000,000, the seven principal air powers will invest $345,000,000 in military and $75,000,000 in civil aviation during this period, a compilation of their aviation budgets reveals.

The United States, Great Britain and Russia will spend the bulk of the $345 000,000 which will go for all defense France and Russia head the list of civil aviation spenders.

Far Up in Millions

Development and expansion of military aivation in the United States during the 12 months period ending next June will cost $82,-000,000. Great Britain will spend within a single million of this sum, and Russia's air expansion program, leading to a goal of a military flying corps equal to combined Europe, will cost $77,000 000.

France, already far ahead of the rest of the world in military aviation, will spend $45,000 000 during the year, Italy $30,000,000 and Japan $20,000 000.

For civil aviation France plans an expenditure of $21,000,000 for the year, and Russia $18 000 000.

The United States civil air budget for the year totals $12 000,000. Germany will spend $10 000 000, the British Empire a similar sum, Italy $4,000,000 and Japan $2,-000,000

Reduction Likely

All of these figures, with the exception of those of Russia, were stated for a scaling down during the year beginning next July. With Great Britain and Germany in financial trouble, and with the United States seeking to balance a national budget a billion dollars out of the way, international efforts are expected to result in a curtailment of air building programs for the fiscal year 1932-1933. A slowing up to Great Britain was held as certain assurance of similar action by France.

Only Russia is expected to continue a tremendous military air expansion program. This country started development of an air corps back in 1921 with the avowed intention of meeting combined Europe ship for ship and man for man. No indications of a change in this policy have been noted.

British For Capital Ship

National aviation comes highest to Great Britain This nation's program of $81,000,000 for military and $10 000,000 for civil flying figures to a per capita cost of $1 65 for the British. The United States aviation per capita costs figures to 69 cents, Italy's 79 cents. While the French per capita is 85 cents, the Russian 56 cents, the Japanese 27 cents and that of Germany but sixteen cents.

Aviation costs represents 16.12 per cent of the British defense budget, 18 per cent of the Japanese, 14 94 of the French, 12.38 of the Russian, 21.73 of the Italian, and 3 77 of the German.

American aviation represents 13.02 per cent of the cost of national defense

TO CONTINUE ROUTE FROM WHARTON P. O.

Mail Carrier To Be Named Soon for Rural Delivery Service.

The only rural route out of Wharton will retain its identity and a carrier will be named soon to succeed Mr Bolton, who died recently, Congressman Grant E Mouser, Jr., announced today

The postal department varied its present policy to assure continuation of the route. It has been the policy, wherever possible to consolidate routing in the event of the death of a rural carrier.

Residents of Wharton and vicinity petitioned Congressman Mouser to ask the postal department to continue the route. After communication from Washington, Congressman Mouser has received word from Arch Coleman, first assistant postmaster general, advising that the department has decided not to consolidate the service and that the vacancy will be filled through civil service examination at an early date

If the route had been consolidated, there might have been danger of Wharton eventually losing its post office, the congressman said.

Competition for the hospital may be even stronger than at present indicated, officials of the veterans' administration say, pointing out that proposals will be accepted up to the time of the hearing, and may even be introduced before the board while the hearing is in progress.

The complete list of cities in or near which sites have been offered to date, as announced by the veterans' administration, is as follows: Akron, Alliance, Apple Creek, Bowling Green, Bellefontaine, Bellaire, Canton, Cincinnati Cleveland Columbus, Cuyahoga Falls, Dayton, Defiance, Delphos, Dover, Elmore, Findlay, Fremont, Fostoria, Green Springs, Hudson, Ironton, Kenton, Lima, Marion, Macedonia, Napoleon, North Kingsville, Oak Harbor, Port Clinton, Piqua, Ravenna, St. Marys, Sandusky, Sidney, Stryker, Swanton, Toledo, Versailles, Wadsworth, Wapakoneta, Warren and Wauseon.

Most in North

While nearly all the sites so far proposed are in the northern half of the state, probably because of the fact that a veterans' hospital already exists in Chillicothe, in the southern half, officials of the veterans' bureau declared that there has been no ruling restricting the location of the new hospital to northern Ohio.

An acceptable site will be readily reached by railroad or motor, will be located on high ground with good drainage, near an adequate supply of good drinking water, and with facilities for sewage disposal. Beauty of surroundings, wooded areas, freedom from noise, dust, and dirt will also be advantages, it was said.

Conferences have been held among congressmen representing northern Ohio districts, including Congressmen Chester Bolton of Cleveland, Wilbur White of Toledo, Francis Seiberling of Akron and Grant E. Mouser Jr., of Marion, each congressman hoping to obtain the location of the hospital site in his respective district. Those congressmen, however, realize that the most important step will be an effort to secure location of the hospital in the northern half of the state, Congressman Mouser said.

It was felt by the congressmen, Mr. Mouser continued, that the chances of obtaining the hospital for this section of the state might be jeopardized if serious opposition among individual cities seeking location of the site developed.

Explaining his stand on efforts to bring the hospital to this district, Congressman Mouser stated that he must necessarily give each city in the district bidding for the site a full opportunity to sell its location to the government, hoping that the hospital may be located in the district. If situated here or near here, it would be readily accessible to disabled veterans in this section of the state. There is no question, the congressman said, but that additional hospitalization is needed in northern Ohio, since there are 432 waiting for admission to Marion hospital in Cleveland, including many emergency cases.

Open to All

Any community may file a brief listing its particular advantages after the general location of the institution has been determined by the board.

"I am very glad that Marion, through the chamber of commerce and other civic organizations, as well as civic committees of other communities in the Eighth district are advancing claims of their municipalities for location of the hospital," the congressman said. "It will be a splendid thing if such a hospital should be located in this district."

Tax on Retail Stores Mounts to High Mark

Total of Near Billion Dollars Shown by Analyst To Be an Addition to General Public's Living Costs.

"Approximately 20 per cent of all the taxes collected in our country are being paid by retail stores," pleaded Channing E Sweitzer, managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods association, in an interview in New York last week "As this amount is included in the cost of operating our retail business, it means that the consumers of this country are paying, in addition to all their other direct and indirect taxes, a tax of two cents on every dollar's worth of merchandise they purchase—including food, wearing apparel, and everything bought at retail. Should the consumer be asked to contribute more in the way of taxes to his government?"

"Using the figures of the year 1929 as illustration, Mr. Sweitzer explained: "The total paid for federal, state and local taxes amounted in that year to $9 792,000,000. Of this figure $4,882,000,000, or 49 4 per cent., represent local taxes, while $1,621,000,000, or 16 7 per cent., was collected in the form of state taxes, and $3,328,000,000, or 33 9 per cent., was collected by our federal government.

"Of this total amount, it has been estimated that retail merchants contributed $646,434,000, exclusive of taxes paid in the form of a general property tax, and included in their rentals.

Additional Tax

"The general property tax included in the rent of premises and real estate used for retail purposes has been roughly estimated to be $245,000,000 This makes the total of all taxes paid by retail stores to the federal, state and local governments of this country approximately $990,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 annually.

"In these days of rapidly-diminishing profits in retailing, the merchant can not absorb more taxes without threatening the very existence of our retail institutions.

"We hear much about the revision of taxes upward," Mr Sweitzer continued, "but we hear little about the revision of the cost of government downward. If governmental expenditures are to continue to increase, some new source of revenue must be found.

"We are told that it is out of the question to increase the rate of the general property taxes, because our present scale of such taxes is much too high, since it is based on an inflated valuation placed on property during the recent boom period.

"An income tax, in order to produce a substantial increase in revenue, would have to include every type of wage earners. This would prove to be very unpopular with the great mass of voters, on whom the politician depends for his political support.

Luxury Tax Not Counted on

"The cost of administration of special taxes on luxuries has been so great in the past that this form of taxation could not be depended upon to produce a large amount of net revenue.

"It seems to us that the answer to the taxation problem is in a sane and practical retrenchment of governmental expenses. A business could not long exist, which incurred a deficit year after year, without impairing its capital and credit standing. This will readily be conceded by any group of sound thinking business men. When we, our legislators, and our governmental executives, learn how to apply the principles of sound business; how to refrain from extravagant spending; how to eliminate every vestige of waste; how to avoid duplication of effort between various branches of our government; how to operate our government departments on balanced budgets—then will government be able to reduce its expenses and the demand for increased taxation on the American people and American business will cease.

"Mark Graves, former tax commissioner of the state of New York, and now director of the state budget of the same state, said recently, in addressing the International Association of Public Works Officials:

"'I have had a quarter century's experience in governmental service, and I have never yet been connected with an organization of the government in which there was not an opportunity to economize We We must sharpen our pencils. figure closely, cut the costs, eliminate waste and extravagance, practice economy, and not venture into new fields of governmental activity until and unless their value and worth are established beyond reasonable doubt. I believe it can be done without 'hamstringing' any essential governmental service and without reducing salaries. We must eliminate waste.'

Knows His Subject

"This is a strong statement coming from one who has devoted a quarter of a century to the problems of state taxation and budgeting and would seem to have in it the deliberateness necessary to prevent any action which would aggravate the present unemployment situation.

"Very few people are familiar with the income and expense of the various branches of our government. This is equally true when it comes to a realization of the part which they plan in helping to defray the cost of government.

"A review of the figures showing the income and expense of federal, state and local units of our government, should be of interest to every American citizen during these days when increased taxes are being discussed.

"The expenditures of the federal government for the fiscal year of 1929 amounted to $3,932,000,000, as compared with $3,695,000,000 in 1923. In 1929 federal tax collections amounted to $3,328 000,000 as compared with $3,082,000,000 six years previously.

"The latest available statistics on state finances are for the year 1928. For that year, state expenditures amounted to $1,838,000,000, with an income of $2,007,000,000 as compared with expenditures of $1,242,000,000, and collections of $917,000,000 for the year 1923.

"In the case of our state governments, both expenditures and taxes have increased in each instance almost 3600,000,000 over this six-year period.

"The figures for our local governments are very interesting For the year 1928 they show expenditures of $6,813,000,000, as compared with $6,136,000,000 in 1923 Local collections amounted to $4,681,000,000 in 1928, as compared with $3,295,000,000 in 1923.

"In 1928 our local governments showed a deficit of $2,172,000,000 as compared with a deficit of $1,851,000,000 six years earlier.

"The combined federal, state, and local expenditures in 1928 amounted to $12 809,000,000 as compared with $10,263,000,000 in 1923, while the combined taxes of these three divisions of our government amounted to $9,342 000,000 in 1928, as compared with $7,234,000,000 in 1923.

"Every year from 1923 through 1928 inclusive the annual deficit resulting from increased government expenditures, federal, state and local, has been steadily increasing, yet our legislators continue to vote appropriations requiring large expenditures of public funds without seeming to consider seriously how these obligations are to be met.

"It cannot be denied that extravagant practices abound in administering our public affairs Evidences of waste exist and are obvious to even the casual observer of the conduct of government institutions

"Right now seems to be the opportune time to tackle this project in a practical, sane and constructive manner. It should be tackled from the point of view of the present and the future Business has been doing it during the past twenty-four months Why should our local, state and federal governments do otherwise?"

Germany last year supplied more than 86 per cent of the toys imported into the United States.

"MY NERVES! MY NERVES!"

Just Another Way of Saying 'I'm Suffering from Acidity!'

Be cautious you can't be still a moment! Jitters, though you ask in its dawn something seems to be changing within you. You can't study—you can't sit—you can't sleep. You're "all in," yet you want to be on the go. That's one of the phases of an acid condition, because Acidity irritates and wrecks the nerves.

Starting with acid-stomach, indigestion, sour stomach and heartburn, acidity also sets up fermentation and putrefaction in the alimentary canal. This breeds poisons which are absorbed by the system and which sap strength and vitality, wreck our nerves and make us feel run-down, restless and depressed.

Acidity today is corrected by an amazing, harmless white tablet developed in Germany by the world's foremost pharmaceutical house. Magnesia Oxide is the name. Magnesia Oxide, upon contact with the gastric juice, generates nascent or active oxygen. The active oxygen does the three things necessary to correct acidity. It stops the formation of excess acid, checks fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines and stimulates the natural movement of the bowels. All the old misery and distress vanishes and a new sense of vigor and well-being is restored.

Make This Acidity Test

Get just how "acid" you are, with this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxide (same as tablets) at any store good druggist. Take two after each meal and see how much better you feel. Then check more exactly on yourself how much you gained after three days. If, after taking the contents of this bottle, the results don't more than amaze you, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money gladly and in full.

Dog Gets Honor; Is Subject for Cartoon in The Star

The proudest dog in Marion Wednesday will be "Mutt" owned by Mr and Mrs. J. Malcolm Strelitz of Durfee drive, who has the distinction of having been the inspiration for a cartoon by Quin Hall famous artist, which will appear Wednesday on The Star editorial page.

The cartoonist, who was a guest at the Strelitz home had the dog as an audience while he was drawing the cartoon which will appear Wednesday on the editorial page.

The intent look in the dog's eye and his important attitude as if they two were old friends, prompted Hall to place the dog in the cartoon.

It would not be much an honor for "Mutt" if he were a pedigreed, thoroughbred dog but, as it happens, he became the property of Mr. and Mrs Strelitz when he jumped into their car over a year ago, and as Mr. Strelitz described him, "is just a dog."

The Strelitz-Hall friendship started over 16 years ago when Mrs Strelitz and Mrs. Hall became friends in Chicago where they both were living. Hall at that time was employed on the Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Hall's visit here came about when he stopped enroute to Pittsburgh, where he makes his home He had been attending a hometown celebration in Lacon, Ill., where he was born.

Mr Hall has always been a great lover of dogs, and had always owned one up to the time he began living in hotels, and he naturally warmed up to "Mutt" and they fast became friends.

The cartoon on the editorial page of today's issue was also drawn by Mr. Hall on his visit here.

STATE WILL BUILD ON U. S. ROUTE 30

Tymochtee Creek Picked for Improvement by State Department.

The erection of a bridge across Tymochtee creek on Harding highway two and a half miles west of Big Island is called for in one of 23 contracts to be let by the state highway department Nov. 6, according to an International News Service story from Columbus yesterday

The Marion county project is estimated to cost $11,887, and is included in the battle of Governor George White against threatened unemployment hardships through a program of bridge construction reaching into every corner of the state.

Greatest possible speed will be used in the work in erecting approximately 200 bridges at a cost of more than $2,000,000 and contracts will call for completion of the bridges early in 1929. C. W Merrell, state highway director, announced.

Morrow county also will share in the first letting of the governor's program. In that county, a bridge will be built on U. S. route 42 on the Mt. Gilead-Mansfield road, at an estimated cost of $8,182.

COURT NEWS

Case Continued

The case was continued to give interested parties an opportunity to marshal their liens and effect a settlement when the common pleas court action of Norton R Hildreth against the R. T. Lewis Co, and others came up for hearing before Judge George B. Scofield yesterday.

Action was brought against the R. T Lewis Co. by Hildreth, who did contract work for Charles I. Miller, who came to Marion representing himself to be a contractor from another Ohio city, and who purchased a lot from the R. T. Lewis Co. through a mortgage plan and with the influence of the company obtained materials and workmen without any advance payment. When work on the construction of a house had been well begun, Miller disappeared, leaving the property, work and materials unpaid for Hildreth and other persons who furnished work and material charge that the R. T. Lewis Co as owner of the property benefited from the work and materials purchased, and have taken action to collect from the company. Various other claims besides that of Hildreth are pending.

Had Faith in Lord, Firestone Says in Radio Talk.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—Thomas Alva Edison "believed in the teachings of our Lord," Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., son of one of the inventor's old "cronies," said last night.

In a memorial radio address over the NBC network, Firestone said:

"When father asked Mr. Edison what he thought to be the controlling power of the universe, he answered:

"'I believe in the teachings of our Lord and master. There is a directing head of people and things—A supreme being who looks after the destinies of the world.

"'I am convinced that the body is made up on entities which are intelligent, and are directed by this high power.'"

Firestone said Mr. Edison gave as an example of his belief, that when one cuts his finger it is the intelligence of these entities which heals the wound. When one is sick, it is the intelligence of these entities which bring convalescence.

He said Mr. Edison believed that when these entities left the body, "the body is like a ship without a rudder—deserted, motionless and dead."

What interests the United States is this: Suppose the league of nations gave us that sort of order some day. Suppose it had ordered us to get out of Cuba when we went there after the Maine was sunk. Suppose it had ordered our marines to get out of Haiti recently. Should we feel inclined to obey?

Why should we join the league in giving orders to the Japanese empire, when we know that we should not be willing to have the league give orders to us. We should defy such orders, as Japan probably will defy the league.

IT IS THE INTENTION of Japan to attend to its own affairs, thus setting Uncle Sam a good example. This is shown by news that the Japanese are digging trenches and building barracks in Manchuria, settling down for the winter, regardless of League of Nations "threats, sanctions, and won't you please?"

He claimed he could not understand why she might commit the atrocity, although Phoenix police found a letter in Mrs. Judd's room there from her husband in which he said he "supposed you thought so much of those two girls that you would be perfectly happy with them * * *" and closed with the statement: "I am not at all surprised at what you tell me."

Statement Unexplained

Like the other tangled and mystifying aspects of the case, this statement went unexplained, the physician offering to throw no light upon it.

McKinnell, saying "I hope she gets away—she's my sister," stated he gave her $5 when she left his automobile at a downtown intersection.

On the possibility that Mrs. Judd might have boarded a train to flee from the state police made a belated attempt to search trains running to the east and it was at Yuma that two railroad operatives found the woman they believed to be Mrs. Judd, only to be forced to free the suspect when she disproved the identification.

At border Mexican points a vigilant watch was kept. Police learned that Mrs. Judd once lived in Mexico and they saw a possibility that she might attempt to cross into foreign territory.

PHONE CO. OFFERS RATE SETTLEMENT

Present Charge To Be Unchanged; Refund Period Cut to 18 Months.

grounds that the increase was not warranted.

In 1930, while the telephone company was continuing to collect the rates protested by the city, the commission ordered the company to reduce the disputed rates and to refund approximately $141,000, representing the difference between the high rates the company began collecting in 1925 under bond and the rates fixed by the commission in 1930.

Reductions ordered in 1930 by the commission saved Marion telephone users from 25 cents to $1.50 a month, depending on the type of service being used.

Comparison of Rates

Individual line business phone rates were reduced from $7.25 a month to $5.75 a month. The rate of the individual line residence phone was dropped 50 cents a month from $3.25 to $2.75 a month. Users of four-party lines in residences paid $2.25 under the reduced rate as compared with $2.50 under the protested rates, a savings of 25 cents a month.

The only increases sought in the villages in the Marion exchange area was that of the business user, this rate under order of the commission being reduced 50 cents a month from $3.75 to $3.25.

All of the rates quoted were subject to a 25 cent reduction if the bill was paid within 10 days from the first of the month.

The telephone company, which a few years ago became the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., applied to the supreme court, charging that the reduced rates ordered by the commission were unfair. The case was later transferred to the U. S. district court of appeals where it is now pending.

The reduced rates now being collected will continue unchanged for five years under the compromise or settlement plan offered by the company.

The letter from Attorney Herbert to Mayor Jones follows:

"Following the occasional conferences that have been held this past summer between yourself, Mr. Carter Patton, your city solicitor, the members of the city council, representatives of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. and myself, held for the purpose of negotiating, if possible, a satisfactory settlement of the injunction suit in federal court of this district of the telephone company against the orders of the commission prescribing telephone rates and refunds in the Marion area I am now in receipt of a letter from counsel for the company Mr. J. G. Fogg, of Cleveland, stating the position of the company.

Ready to Settle

"He advises me that he is authorized to agree to an entry enjoining the orders of the commission only insofar as they relate to the refund of any money collected for service furnished prior to November 1, 1929, or any interest thereon, and also as to interest on moneys collected subsequent thereto, and otherwise denying the company any further relief from the orders of the commission.

"As I understand his letter, the intent is that the company will refund all moneys collected from its subscribers for all services rendered back to and including Nov. 1, 1929, without interest. Roughly I estimate this sum to be in the neighborhood of $50,000 and it is my understanding that the company will make this refund commencing as soon as an entry embodying these terms is signed by the court.

"Reviewing the case somewhat, you will no doubt recall that following the interlocutory hearing last spring, the court sustained our (the utilities commission) position as to the current collection of the rates fixed by the commission so that your community has enjoyed the advantage of these rates commencing with May 1, 1931. I feel fairly certain that, were the case to be tried to an ultimate conclusion, the present rates could be sustained, but whether they could be upheld clear back to 1925 only the court could answer. Should this case be carried through to a conclusion it may require two more years before the supreme court of the United States had finally disposed of it as it must first be submitted to the special master and his findings and recommendations reviewed by the three-judge court.

Four Decisions

"There are four possible decisions:

"First—Denial of any injunction whatever and sustaining of the commission's orders in their entirety.

"Second: Sustaining of the commission's orders as to current collections and enjoining the orders as to refunds for the period covered by the bond, or for some portion of it.

"Third: Allowance of an injunction to the extent of fixing rates intermediate between those fixed by the commission and those ordered by the company under bond.

"Fourth: Allowance of the injunction as prayed for.

"The first result would be a complete victory for the commission and the last would, of course, be a complete victory for the company, resulting in a reinstatement of the rates in effect prior to May, and no refund.

"Considering these possibilities and the desirability of definitely ending this litigation for all time, with the consent of a majority of the present rates agreed upon with the commission refund of collections made to June 1, 1931, I believe that the interests of all concerned, I cannot recommend to you or to your associates by your council understanding that the commission and your council have expressed themselves as agreeable to and willing to authorize such a settlement. This, of course, is not the case, and I am advising him to the effect that I cannot yet give him this assurance. Settlements, of course, always involve compromise on both sides. Were I representing a private client here I would not hesitate to recommend a settlement such as proposed but where the public interest is involved there should be a complete accord between representatives of that public.

"The question to determine is whether to accept an immediate cash refund of approximately one-third of the amount collected under bond, together with a continuation of the present rates established by the commission or whether to fight on in the ultimate hope of recovering the balance of this bonded fund. Naturally, therefore, the commission and the attorney general would be hesitant to assume the responsibility for such a decision in the absence of an expression from your city council, feeling that such an expression would represent the public sentiment of your community.

"Will you please, therefore, submit this matter for the consideration of that body, and advise me of its action so that I may be guided accordingly."

CITY'S UNDERWORLD ACTS TO AID CAPONE

Speakeasies All Contribute to "Defense Fund" for Gang Leader.

By International News Service

CHICAGO, Oct. 20—With Al Capone facing "a federal rap"—possibly 17 years in prison—the Chicago underworld, of which he is the supreme dictator, is going to the front for him with coin of the realm. A "Capone fund" aggregating $50,000 a week is being raised, it was learned today.

Every speakeasy in Chicago is contributing in this manner to the fund. The Capone syndicate has slapped an extra $3 on the price of every five-gallon can "pegged" at $30. It has now jumped to $32 a can to every saloonkeeper. The $2 goes to the fund.

Twenty-five thousand five-gallon cans of alcohol are sold weekly in the Chicago metropolitan district. This means an added revenue of "fifty grand" a week which is to be used to help Capone in his fight against imprisonment and to make him as comfortable as is possible in the event he is forced to serve a prison sentence.

Commercial Zone Would Be Changed for Local Milk Company.

The extension of the commercial zone on Olney avenue to include four lots on the east side of the street near Church, which is being sought by the Moores & Ross Dairy Co. as a building site, moved a step nearer reality last night when city council adopted the recommendation of the city planning commission that the zone be extended.

A petition signed by 10 owners of property in the vicinity of the proposed plant, was submitted with the recommendation of the planning commission.

HARLOW TALKS AT DEMOCRATIC MEET

Accomplishments of the city service department during the last two years and what the department hopes to accomplish in the next year if the Democratic ticket is acted upon favorably by Marion voters at the Nov 3 election were outlined by D. J. Harlow, service director, in an address to the Marion County Democratic club last night.

The service director explained in detail how the money allotted his department has been spent in a manner to obtain a maximum number of improvements, and reviewed the program of the department during his tenure of office.

Appointed early in 1930 by Mayor L. Dan Jones, Director Harlow has direct charge of all street work, the supervision of street improvements done under contract, the city garbage collection department, the Marion airport and the sewage disposal plant.

The meeting last night was one of a series of Monday night pre-election meetings to be sponsored by the club. A general discussion of the director's talk and plans to stimulate interest in the municipal election followed the address.

CLIPPING LEADS TO ARREST OF NEGRO

Man Held Here for Warren Officers; Wanted on Shooting Charge.

H. E. Cardiff and Lieut. Ralph Steen, of the Erie police.

When taken from the train Jones professed to have forgotten where he had boarded the train and also gave a fictitious name. Record Breaking Champion, Will Thinks, Is Flo Ziegfeld of the Show Business

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL Sir every man that has ever done anything out of the ordinary is a character, and I would call Flo Ziegfeld a man that has done something out of the ordinary, plum out of the ordinary. He has given to the American Public for Lord knows how many years, an entertainment that must have given them more pleasure and happiness than any other for they have paid more to see it than to any other man in the World. A Circus with all its tremendous aggregation of assorted animals from the four corners of the earths. Yet Mr. Florenz Ziegfeld can take just one breed, in fact just one half the breed, the aha of the specie, and can assemble such a round up of beauty that combined with the best there is to offer at that time in the amusement line, and he can concoct an evenings entertainment that you remember it till the next year.

A funny thing about the "Follies" all the years I was with it, in hearing people speak of the show that year, they never spoke of it in comparison to any other show. It was always "Its better than last years, or its not so good as last years." It always stood alone for there was no other show that they could remember for a year. His hardest opposition has been himself. If he had been new every year, and that particular show was his first, why each one would have been heralded as a masterpiece. But naturally they had to compete with each other. But in not of his shows, or his hundred and one other things that any one could write on by the hour about that he has accomplished in the theatrical world, its just of him that I want to tell you something.

Started with Strong Man

The reason it is fresh in my mind. He was out on the coast a few weeks ago to visit his charming wife who was playing out there in one of the Coast's most successful shows, and as myself and my family are tremendously fond of him and his family why he was up to our Igloo some one evening for dinner. We got him started in on old times, and we had a great evening. Here was the peer of all Revue Producers of all time telling about his barnstorming about the country in his early career. His real start was with Sandow the strong man, I guess the first strong man. That is the first strong man that was strong enough to make people pay to see how strong he was. Well Mr. Ziegfeld dug him up over in Europe, and brought him over here. But let him tell it:

"I remember the first time I was out here on the coast. It was on Sandow's first trip. We had a kind of a vaudeville show here around him center like Henry Lauder carried, only a better show. One time in Frisco we had him billed to fight a Lion. Just here-tofore it seemed a bit of an excitement and we had a packed house. We were bringing Rome to Frisco. It was not a part of our programme, it was a special stunt that was arranged there. It wasent framed either. This fellow Sandow really thought he was better than a Lion, so we got him a big old Lion. He entered the temporary Coloseum with more brave than any Christian in the early days ever faced one. The Women kinder half hid their eyes, appearing like they dident want it to be seen that they were looking at such a sight, but secretly hoping that something would happen. Instead of the Lion making for him, he had to make for the Lion. Well the old Lion took to outer edges, Sandow had to follow him, in fact chase him.

Lion Failed to Act

"The Lion dident pay any more attention to him than a house cat would. Well there wasent much fight. Everybody hollered that the Lion was doped, but he wasent. I wouldent even think of such a thing. I love Lions, especially after I Counted up the house. Well Sandow kept at him, at least he kept at him till I could get the money from the Box Office to a fast moving conveyance. It was a terrible shock to me to hear the Lion was not the King of Beasts for I had read it all my life. Sandow dressed for his performances in a Tiger skin, in fact he brought that style of raiment over here. He was years ahead of Elinor Glynn, who used it as a mattress. Well Sandow left the Arena De Lions not ahead of the Lions but ahead of the Populace. He wore his tiger skin for pajamas during the rest of that night ride. He was so downhearted about the Lion as I was. I never went to Frisco till the year of their big fair out there, when I took the Follies out. I thought the Odor of the Lion had vanished, but some of the newspapers had a memory and said, 'The man that arranged for a man to whip a Lion one time is in our midst again. We will watch him this time. If his Follies are doped then give us some of the dope.' Did I tell you what happened when we were on our way to the Coast? Well the train broke down and a wheel come off a car. When they got a new one fixed it got about 10 men to carry the old broken one into our stateroom. When we arrived at Oakland the Press Boys met us and I had them come in. They saw the wheel in the drawing room. "What in the world is this?" "Oh, that's a wheel we broke off and the Professor just picked it up and brought it in here.' They photographed it, and it made a great story, when as a matter of fact Sandow accident even have rolled it downhill.

Changed but Little.

"He was a great fellow, this Sandow, a very high class man, a fine man, and perhaps the strongest of them, the most beautiful body. His Widow has for him back and imitator was right ahead of us claiming that he was the real Sandow. We finally had him brought to court, and as the case was progressing and all was argument as to who was which and what. I suggested to our lawyer to tell the judge to test them and see which was the real one. I had Sandow's big Iron Dumb Bell brought in, and the Judge asked the other fellow to lift it. He pulled a Kidney loose and couldent even get it out of the box. Sandow reached down, picked it up with one hand and was ready to make forward passes with it out of the back window. We won the case. I wish I had some way of testing all my imitators."

He has had a great experience has Mr. Ziegfeld. He looks and is just the same as the days I went with him on his Midnight Frolic Roof, (the first show) in 1914. Many of us got our start, our real start with him. Those were great old days those Folly days, packed house, wonderful audiences, never bothered me as to what I was to do or say, never suggested or never cut out. And to think after 30 years of giving them the best in town he still has the best show in New York." That shows it wasent the performers that made Ziegfeld shows, (for hundreds have come and gone). It was just Ziegfeld. I think he holds the record for being Champion. He knew colors, and he knew beauty. He knew how to keep nudeness from being vulgar. He was a gift, and not an accomplishment. Long live the old Master.

Statistics published by the department of labor show that food is eighteen per cent. cheaper than it was a year ago, a situation which would be decidedly satisfactory to the most of our people if they had eighty-two per cent. of the money they had at their command a year ago.

Premier Mussolini barred pomp and high hats at the big fascist celebration in Naples last Saturday. Making high hats taboo looks like a deliberate attempt on the part of Benito to eliminate that tribute to long ago so common to such gatherings, not only in Europe, but here at home also.

Gerald Swope, president of the General Electric company, testifying before the federal senate unemployment committee, insisted that insurance against unemployment is imperative, but that it should be provided, if possible, by industry and not by government. Mr. Swope did not by that endear himself to the federal legislators who are planning the maintaining of their political fences at government expense.

Russell T. Sherwood, the lieutenant of Mayor James J. Walker, of New York City, who has been sought by the Seabury committee to throw light on the mayor's stock transactions, has been located in Mexico City on his honeymoon. No wonder Mr Sherwood has shown no inclination to make a quick return to New York!

The Paris press is still scoring the League of Nations' invitation to this country to participate in the deliberations of the League council, siding with Japan, while the German press believes our acceptance is based on interests in the East rather than on any new attitude toward Geneva. There's little question but what there are Americans who will agree with both the Paris and Berlin views.

Looking Out for Each Other.

Humorist Will Rogers, up to his usual tricks, stole Sunday night's radio entertainment, intended to awaken the people for the unemployment relief fund drives to end on Thanksgiving More than President Hoover, who made the main address, more than Walter S. Gifford, who made the introduction, more than the celebrated artists who graced the program, the frank Mr Rogers gave his listeners something to remember.

He prodded the doubt that anything is more important right now than taking care of the outstanding domestic problem—unemployment. He strengthened the belief that the United States can take care of the problem by employing direct means. He ridiculed the nation that is "riding to the poorhouse in an automobile." He demanded less talk and more action. He admitted that he didn't know what after-dinner speakers meant when they thundered that "America is fundamentally sound," but he asserted his belief that "America is fundamentally generous."

President Hoover's speech contained this sentence: "No governmental action, no economic doctrine, no economic plan or project can replace that God-imposed responsibility of individual man and woman to their neighbors." Local action is the keynote of the administration's relief policy. Mr. Hoover's relief committee, headed by Walter S. Gifford, is the agency to enact the policy. Sunday night's radio splurge was intended as a sort of national "pep" meeting.

Most communities feel that they have acquitted themselves reasonably well of their responsibilities to date, and that the same spirit of neighborliness on which they have depended will continue as long as there is need of it. They appreciate Mr. Hoover's genuine concern in the situation and the help he is giving them by lending the weight of his office for their cause. At the same time, however, they are distressed by the suspicion that the fight against unemployment has not yet been given the benefit of a complete muster. The United States continues to head towards "the poorhouse in an automobile." The obligation of looking out for each other has only been half translated from theory to fact.

The County Fair.

Following the county fair of two years ago, which did not prove the financial success hoped for, announcement was made that a fair would be held the following year to test out the public's attitude toward the annual county exposition. It was the very general understanding at that time that the future of the fair would depend on the outcome, that it would be continued in the event that the patronage was such as to demonstrate the public's desire for its continuation as a yearly event, and would be abandoned in the failure of such a manifestation of appreciation. As is known, last year's fair proved a financial failure. Regardless of this outcome, however, another fair was held this year, and it likewise proved a financial disappointment. Premiums were paid on the basis of thirty cents on the dollar, save in the cases of exhibitors from a distance. The latter, we understand, were paid in full.

But this does not tell all the story There are still unpaid bills to be met, and it will take something like $3,100 to make the fair board even on the deficiencies of last year and this. The county commissioners possibly will be asked to come across with this amount, but what they may do in the matter is not at present known.

During the last ten years, so this paper learns from their office, the county commissioners have paid out something like $25,000 for the maintenance of the fair Despite this very generous support, the society is approximately $12,000 in debt. How much longer this drain on the public treasury is to continue is naturally of public interest. It may be well held that to abandon the fair would be a step backward on the part of the county. On the other hand, to continue the fair and pay premiums on a basis of thirty cents on the dollar is hardly pleasing for contemplation. It's a question if the latter would not prove a greater blow to county pride than the former.

Were the situation the result of bad management on the part of the fair board, the remedy would be a change of management, but it must be said for those in charge that the result would probably have been the same under any management.

The truth is that the fair, as a county agricultural exhibit, has very largely lost its appeal, and the racing no longer draws as it did in the past. For several years, about the only real drawing cards have been the night attractions, and they have not drawn sufficiently to let the Agricultural society out even.

There was a time when the fair was the one big county event of the year, the one event which brought people from all parts of the county to renew acquaintance, but such is no longer the case. The automobile has changed all this. What was considered distance in the horse-and-buggy days has been eliminated in this motor age. If Mr. Smith and his family up in Tully wish to exchange greetings with the Black family down in Prospect township, they get out the family machine, and an hour later they are at the Black home, and if either the Smiths or the Blacks want to see a fair, they drive down to Columbus to see the state exposition.

It's this which is spelling the doom of the county fair in all sections of the country, and there is nothing to indicate that time will work a change in the situation.

According to Schedule.

The United States Akron's trial flights have been completed. She is expected to sail Wednesday for the new navy airdock at Lakehurst, New Jersey After considerable delay in starting the series of flights to prove her air worthiness, everything has gone off according to schedule The naval inspection board has recommended acceptance.

Ohio has taken a proprietary interest in the Akron. Ohio enterprise obtained the contract to build her. Hundreds of Ohio men have spent months laboring on the fabrication of her huge skeleton. Ohio people were the first to see her in the air When she leaves the state, to come back only infrequently for visits, a vacancy of interest will be the result. Perhaps construction of a second ship, according to navy department plans, will compensate for the loss.

The navy department is faced with an administrative order to decrease its budget. Construction of the second airship it has hoped to build to accompany the Akron is practically assured, however, by the fact that funds already have been appropriated for that purpose.

It is easy to understand one difficulty in the way of armament reduction, in considering Ohio's interest in the Akron and her projected companion ship. As a theory, armament reduction is popular. When it comes as close home, however, as it would if it were to be found impossible to build the second airship in the dock at Akron airport, the theory begins to lose support. Naturally the same thing takes place around shipbuilding yards.

"President Preaches Economy; Records Show He Practices It"—Headline over a Washington story Unfortunately for the public, there is but one president in all the horde of office-holders

Loved by His City.

Cleveland's pathetic grief over the death of Samuel Mather is an awesome testimony of respect. The character of this distinguished man who was so loved by his city that it feels temporarily helpless without him has few counterparts in a world where success is not always measured by public respect.

Cleveland honored Mr Mather particularly for two things. Primarily, it was his eminent success in business that elevated him to the standing of first citizen. Secondarily, it was his generous benefactions to institutions and people of the city that won him unusual respect.

The responsibility he felt to do as much good as possible with the fortune he inherited and improved was more than usually strong. It is significant that, with the advent of hard times, Mr. Mather increased his already substantial gifts and urged his friends to do likewise. Public service served to magnify his admirable character into heroic proportions. Those who would die loved by those with whom they lived and worked could do no better than to study the life of Samuel Mather.

THE CHILEAN FLEET GETS THE AIR.

The government of Chili has a $40,000,000 battleship it might be willing to sell to anybody desirous of making a purchase. There is nothing the matter with the boat as battleships go It used to be flagship of the national fleet, and the Chileans were quite proud of it and the prestige it gave them south of the Isthmus. But this was before the recent domestic unpleasantness in the form of a little civil war.

When that trouble broke out the navy went communistic and, in a manner of speaking, ran amok. For a while things looked rather black for order and government.

Then up rose the little air fleet, which had not kicked over the traces, and went out after the navy with its thick smokestacks, its big guns, and its thousands of sailormen and gunners, and warned it to obey shore orders and return to port. When it didn't the airmen dropped bombs, big ones that splashed and exploded They blew the revolt right out of the water.

There was no more trouble. The big battleship and all the little war vessels turned around and went home. The people aboard them looked up at the planes still circling around, and said they had had enough, and that was that.

However, the Chileans no longer loved their fleet, and they were anything but proud of the showing it had made as a fighting force So they have started in to reduce and dismantle, and incidentally, save several millions of dollars a year. Two hundred officers and some thousands of men are already hunting jobs.

This doesn't mean that people of Chili have gone pacifistic. They are not foolish. It merely means that they have decided to build up their air fleet instead of their sea fleet hereafter and depend upon it to provide the first line of defense in time of trouble.

Perhaps their example is not altogether to be emulated, for Chili has special geographic and political conditions to justify such a sudden radical and even emotional change in the general defense policy But their example is something to be considered and studied. Even though the personnel of the rebellious fleet was at the moral disadvantage from which mutineers generally suffer, its helplessness under the shadow of a few planes with bombs ready to drop, is highly suggestive of approaching obsoleteness.—Detroit Free Press.

Guernsey Immigrants to Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Guernsey county took its name from the British island of Guernsey lying just off the French coast, and it was not just a mere fancy for the name. Immigrants to America who had come from that island brought the name with them. This is how it happened

Cambridge was founded in 1806. That was four years before Guernsey county was provided for by law. In midsummer, 1806, just as the lots of the new town were being offered for sale, a party, consisting of several families from the island of Guernsey, who had just arrived in America and were traveling west looking for a location for their new homes, came along and were induced to purchase lots and begin their life in America there. They were followed in the next year or two by other families from Guernsey island until the Guernsey element in the place included fifteen to twenty families

They were aggressive people and by the time the new county was created, exercised such influence in the community that they were able to have the name of their old home adopted as that of the county of their new one, and Guernsey county it was. The family names of these immigrants attested their close proximity to France—such as Marquand, Naftel, Sarchet, Ogier, Sharbert, etc.—some of which still are heard in the vicinity of Cambridge

One of these Guernsey immigrants, John Aitken, became the first editor of the Guernsey Times, one of the early newspapers of Ohio, established in 1824 It was long one of the influential papers of the state, two of its editors—C. J. Allbright and J. D. Taylor—being sent to congress to represent the district, and another editor, D. D Taylor, to the state legislature The act establishing Guernsey county bears the date of January 31, 1810.

Unsuspected Eye Trouble.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There is no organ of the body more abused and more neglected than the eye. Somehow we take it for granted that it is unnecessary to give it a thought. Unless actual disease, redness and pain, sticking together of the lids, or some other really uncomfortable symptom presents itself, we go about our affairs in delightful ignorance that after all there is something wrong with the organ of vision.

These bodies of ours are odd things. There may be something wrong in one organ that produces strange and unusual symptoms, not in the organ itself, but in some other part of the body, perhaps remote from the diseased or irritated organ. For instance, who ever thinks about indigestion or backache as being due to eyestrain? As a matter of fact, however, symptoms of this sort are frequently the result of the struggles of nature, pained and distressed because of the drainage of nerve energy from imperfect or abused eyes.

Outside of digestive disturbances, the most common cause of headache is eyestrain. It matters little where the headache is, or what sort of pain it produces. Except for those headaches which women frequently have in the top of the head, every form and type of headache may be removed by putting the eyes in proper condition.

I beg of you not to misunderstand me Not every headache comes from the eyes, of course. There are many other causes for headache. But I have seen so many thousands of persons relieved of headache by the wearing of glasses, that I feel like crying from the housetops to suffering humanity to have the eyes examined. Certainly you should do this when there is not direct evidence that the trouble, whatever it is, can be assigned to a definite ailment somewhere else than to the eyes.

Persistent headache, frequently recurring headaches, periodical headache, obscure symptoms in the head, less defined than real headache—any one of these symptoms should arouse the suspicion that the eyes may be at fault. If they are at fault, nine times out of ten it is because the eyes are being strained, either from over-use or use in improper light, or because of the need of spectacles.

M.M.M. Q—How long will it take to develop symptoms which require operation when the appendix is involved?

A—This depends upon the underlying conditions—and whether or not the disturbance has become chronic or due to an acute attack Your doctor should advise you along these lines.

S.M.E. Q—How can I reduce the ankles? Exercises do not help.

A—It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing in general.

A READER. Q—I am using peroxide on my face hoping to remove superfluous hair—will this harm the skin? What would you advise along these lines?

2—I am using a ——— for rheumatism and catarrh—do you believe that I will derive any benefit?

A—Peroxide is drying to the skin in most instances—but used with equal parts of lemon juice it is often used as a bleach for the skin. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—Not that I know of. If you have rheumatism find the underlying cause so that definite advice and treatment can be outlined. Catarrhal conditions also should be definitely cleared up. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Classius, Pioneer Student of Heat.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The name of Classius is associated with the development of a true knowledge of the significance of heat, its properties and the laws which govern it. The fundamental questions concerning heat were subjects of uncertainty and debate down to the beginning of the nineteenth century. Although our savage ancestors know that heat was generated and fire produced by rubbing two sticks together, it was many centuries before the scientists were able to give a correct explanation of heat, as the result of the friction of molecules with each other.

It seems incredible that the views of the Greek philosophers concerning heat and its cause survived for upwards of 2000 years. They believed that heat effects were due to the addition of some material substance to the body experiencing a rise of temperature. At the very end of the seventeenth century a Professor Stahle, of the University of Halle in Germany, gave to this assumed substance the name "phlogiston." By many scientists this hypothetical substance was called "calorie." Many scientists in the course of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries voiced their scepticism concerning this assumed substance —including Descartes, Boyle, Hooke and Newton. Although some of them conceived heat to be a "mode of motion," no one was able to furnish a convincing demonstration. Toward the end of the eighteenth century the famous American scientist, Count Rumford, put phlogiston out of business forever by proving that heat is due to the motion and friction of molecules of matter with each other Classius gave a solid foundation to much that is known of heat today under the name of thermodynamics. Of recent years, this science and its principles have come to be recognized as of cardinal importance, especially in the field of astrophysics.

Rudolph Julius Emmanuel Classius was born in Koeslin, in Pomerania, on January 2, 1822. He was educated at the gymnasium in Stettin; and also studied at the University of Berlin from 1840 until 1844. Subsequently he took his degree at the University of Halle in 1844. In succession he was professor of physics at the Polytechnic institute in Zurich ——35—in the University of Wuerzburg—1857—— and in the University of Bonn—136

Two of the great discoveries or formulations of Classius were those of the second law of thermodynamics and of the conception which he entitled entropy The second law of thermodynamics means that heat can not itself pass from colder to a hotter body. Heat energy of itself, in other words, always passes from high to low temperature. Entropy means that things, when mixed or shuffled, tend toward greater confusion, passing from simplicity towards complexity Classius applied his principles to a comprehensive development of the theory of the steam engine Clerke-Maxwell credits Classius with being one of the founders of the kinetic theory of gases. Classius died at Bonn on August 24, 1888.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Primitive Zumperi.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Near the border of Nigeria, that vast tract in West Africa belonging to the British, are to be found a strange, almost fantastic tribe of people called the Zumperi Few white people have ever penetrated to their native villages, but for indefatigable wanderers and lovers of the bizarre there are few more fascinating regions on the face of the earth.

One of the ghastly tokens of these tribes' former cannabilistic appetites—a place of skulls—is to be found in every village. But today the skulls and remains of small game are set up upon sticks.

Perhaps the outstanding characteristic of the Zumperi is their faith in magic. These primitive people set up sticks and other objects to protect them against the forces of nature and marauding animals. A part of babies' heads are shaved to shield them from the spells of black magic.

No more mentally primitive tribes than the Zumperi could be imagined. They seem to have no conception of how to measure time. They do not know how long ago events in their daily lives happened nor, for that matter, their age. Similarly, they seem unable to reckon distance except by saying such and such a place is so many sleeps away.

They believe in a God that is both creator and destroyer and manifests his power over everything—animals, plants and stones.

No white man has ever been able to find out whether these strange tribes believe in the immortality of the soul, but it is known that they think the wicked are transformed into reptiles. To them the buffalo is the symbol of death and destruction.

The country, in general, yields a living only after the most persistent cultivation, but there are here and there spots—for instance the settlement at Lissam—which is situated in a valley among oil palms

As in the case among almost all primitives, one of the Zumperi's chief means of making merry is the dance. Whenever a leopard is killed by the braves of the tribe a lengthy celebration follows. The dancers wear masks and sometimes don costumes resembling eagles. Other men act in the dance as hunters and a pantomime in which the birds are killed is staged to the accompaniment of rattling and drumming on the crude instruments the natives have made for themselves.

Generally the feasting is continued for days. The Zumperi both in their daily life and in their gala festivals are exceptionally rare examples of a people almost untouched by the breath of what we call civilization.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 20—The overpeopled strip of Harlem known as the "Black Belt" accepts its economic sadnesses with commendatory calm. One can not walk through Lenox avenue without a pricking qualm that the army of colored jobless are doing less whining than most of us.

While Sunday afternoon is the gala period, when everybody struts, there seems no time when the street is without a characteristic grin. From upstairs flats float the plunk of the banjo and harmonizing of quartets. Always music and song.

Lenox avenue offers a variety of street salvationists who are sporties of sheer. One gray haired patriarch from his curb perch cried "Us cullud folks ain't livin' on shitlins these days. And we ain't grumblin'. We is just posh ole blacks and pow'ful glad we ain't Reds."

All of which emphasizes the diffidence of the American Negro to proselytizing by radicals. In many ways he has been hardest hit by vast pandemonium that has swept the world. Hundreds in Harlem have not had a day's work in two years.

Aristocrats of the section are naturally theatrical folk whose vogue until recently has been pronounced. Yet the lull on the Rialto coupled with the decline of interest on the sepia revue left many entertainers without work and standing under "The Wishing Tree."

Several extraordinarily fine residences on Striver's Row and Sugar Hill are shuttered and displaying "For Rent" signs. The slump among the railroads has affected another prosperous Harlem set—the Pullman porters and manicure maids of de luxe trains.

In times of financial stress the colored citizen turns to religion more devoutly than ever Churches above 125th street are crowded and several revivals are on. The "numbers" gambling game, which is Harlem's besetting sin, has had a big drop in suckers.

Devotion of the late Eddie Dunn to his employer, George M Cohan, was symbolized by his will. He left his estate of $5,000 entirely to Cohan's beautiful daughter, Helen. Dunn had been Cohan's manager and personal representative since the actor's flag waving vaudeville days. His devotion to Cohan took on something of idolatry

* * *

Dunn was for years featured in Ranold Wolf's sparkling Morning Telegraph column as the parenthesized Eddie (Waistcoat) Dunn, a tribute to his extraordinary dazzling collection of fancy vests. No vestit was too flamboyant. He had them in zebra stripes, polka dot, blood red and apple green. It may have been an exaggeration but the Rialto reported more than 300 in the mighty array.

* * *

Cohan is not only loyal to old associations but to old scenes. In the summer he still lits in old chair in rear of his Broadway theater He had a gaudy office but it was only a pretense His real office was in this areaway In a like manner Cohan has retained an apartment at a midtown hotel by the year When he is rehearsing or directing a play he lives there.

* * *

Most of us think of Cohan as the jumping jack comedian—a miracle of springfulness with a nasal twang And even today it is rather shocking to see instead a sedate gentleman with graying hair—as white almost as that of his beloved father Jerry.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Oct. 20 — The state department has turned to a quiet unassuming man for advice and counsel as to the best way of dealing with the delicate situation now existing in Manchuria between China and Japan.

Diplomacy is a new field for W. Cameron Forbes, American ambassador to Tokyo, although he has been in public life at intervals since 1904. His mission to Tokyo, begun a year ago, is his first diplomatic assignment.

But Ambassador Forbes has a reputation for fact finding and that is what the state department desires most on the Manchurian situation. He has much background information gathered since he first went to Tokyo which should prove valuable to Secretary Stimson

In fact, Stimson was so eager to get Forbes' viewpoint that the ambassador rushed to the state department from the railroad station when he reached the capital.

* * *

Forbes is probably best known for his work in connection with the Philippine Islands

He was governor-general of the islands from 1909 to 1913 and had previously been a member of the Philippine commission. President Harding appointed him to the famed Wood-Forbes commission in 1921 which investigated conditions in the islands.

Forbes and the late Maj Gen. Leonard Wood spent six months studying the problem of whether Filipinos should be granted independence. Their report to the President was that the time is "are not yet ready."

President Wilson praised his work in the Philippines. When Forbes resigned as governor-general when a democratic administration came in, Wilson wrote in accepting it

"I realize the amount of excellent work you have done in the island and I desire to thank you for your faithful and careful service."

* * *

Sixty-one years old, wealthy and the grandson of Ralph Waldo Emerson, the famous essayist, Ambassador Forbes is little known around the capital.

He was educated at Harvard and upon graduation entered the field of finance. He served as a clerk in a Boston banking house at first and five years from the time he left Harvard he was made chief of the financial department of Stone & Webster, electrical engineers. Since 1909 he has been a member of J. M. Forbes & Co., bankers.

It has been vacant since 1929, when Charles MacVeagh resigned, except for the brief time during the London naval conference when William Castle, Jr., undersecretary of state, filled the post temporarily.

GRETA GARBO TO BE AT PALACE

Garbo's fourth talking picture, "Susan Lennox, Her Fall and Rise," comes to the Palace for three days, commencing tonight.

GRETA GARBO

Everyone may not like the Swedish star, but there's a fascination about her and her acting that makes the box office money-changers clink merrily when her pictures are shown.

She chose Clark Gable as her leading man, promptly raising him sky-high in public favor — for what Garbo does, could not be wrong with her followers.

David Graham Phillips wrote the novel which was produced by the Shuberts in 1920. Garbo has 18 costume changes—a carnival dancer's spangles, ultra-modern evening gowns, pajamas, ensembles, sport suits, farm girl's clothes, Follies tights, hiking outfit, gingham frocks, lounging robes, ski-skins and boots and boating costumes. Thirty-six sets were erected to cover the action of the story.

Included in the cast are Jean Hersholt, John Miljan, Alan Hale, Hale Hamilton, Ian Keith.

"SMART WOMAN" COMING TOMORROW

Mary Astor, Robert Ames, Everett Edward Horton and Neal Francis have the principal parts in "Smart Woman," playing at the Marion Wednesday and Thursday.

The picture, adapted from Myron C. Fagan's successful stage play, has a colorful background and lavish wardrobes. Ruth Weston is a member, or rather was a member of New York's "400" before she went to Hollywood. She was known as one of Gotham's most beautiful debutantes at her "coming out party."

Horton, one of the leading comedians of the screen, is a Phi Kappa Psi of good old Columbia university. He speaks French and German. He's a confirmed bachelor, living on his ranch in San Fernando valley, collecting strange breeds of dogs and antiques and raising flowers and rare shrubs.

Joseph Conrad's Works Theme of Talk by O. S. U. Professor

JOSEPH CONRAD, his writings and his place in the literary world was the subject of an interesting talk by Prof. William L. Graves, professor of English at Ohio State university before members of the Literature Study club and a number of guests last night at the home of Mrs. E. E. Morgan of south Greenwood street.

The speaker prefaced his discussion of the author with a brief sketch of his life and described some events which inspired his writings. "Conrad has made for his own certain parts of the world," the speaker said. "His early books are filled with danger to life and human character and his theory is that a man's character is tested more by his removal from civilization than by staying in it."

The creation of atmosphere is one of Conrad's achievements, the speaker pointed out and what he seems to be forever seeking is the truth about life. He described the author as never giving the impression of being in a hurry and classified his writing as elaborate instead of simple. "A great work in literature, as in art or music, is not apparent at the first glance and is a challenge to the reader," Professor Graves states.

One of the obvious things in the author's work is the peculiarity of his scenes and settings. It was pointed out, and almost always his characters are alone. His characters do not always stand but the author does not change the story to make it end right. His cardinal virtue is his steadfastness and time and time again his story is built around a man of steadfastness, fidelity, loyalty and unselfishness. That the author waited a long time for fame and his first story was not published for years after it was written were points brought out by the speaker who ranked Conrad with Shakespeare.

Professor Graves closed his talk by reading excerpts from several of the author's stories. He was introduced by Miss Grace Baldwin, president of the club.

Following the address the guests were served refreshments by a social committee composed of Miss Edna McGehee, Miss Lucile Young and Mrs. W. J. Wetzel. Receiving with Mrs. Morgan was Miss Baldwin.

Marion Couple Exchange Vows in Kenton St. John's Church

ONE hundred invitations were issued for the wedding yesterday afternoon in St. John's Evangelical church in Kenton of Miss Eleanor Elizabeth Pfeiffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pfeiffer of 560 west Columbia street, Kenton, to Richard Ellsworth Parish, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Parish of 726 east Church street.

Rev. H. E. Pfister, pastor, read the single ring marriage vows at 4:30 o'clock. The altar was banked with chrysanthemums in shades of pale lavender, palms and ferns. Two seven-branch candelabra lighted either side of the altar.

"The Wedding March" from Wagner's "Lohengrin," was played as the organ as the bridal party moved down the aisle, the bride on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage.

The bride was lovey in an ivory satin wedding gown, cut on simple, diagonal lines, with long sleeves. The long skirt fell in a soft fullness to the floor. Her long flowing veil of illusion was held in place by a lace cap, with a chin strap caught at each side with orange blossoms. She wore white moire slippers. A sheaf of calla lilies tied with white satin were her bridal flowers. Her only ornament was a necklace of crystals, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Mary Kathryn Artopoeus of this city was her maid of honor. Miss Louise Fink of Kenton and Miss Martha Dingess of Columbus were bridesmaids.

Miss Artopoeus was in a frock of poudre blue chiffon, fashioned on long lines, with a short jacket. She wore a small turban of white transparent velvet, with white kid gloves and white kid slippers. Her arm bouquet of pink roses was tied with pink tulle.

The bridesmaid's frocks were similar, both in shades of pale blue chiffon. Their hats were of white velvet and their gloves and slippers were white kid. Pink roses formed their arm bouquets.

Robert Bailey of Marion was best man to Mr. Parish. Bernard Pfeiffer of Kenton, brother of the bride, Howard Bailey and John Parish of Marion, were ushers.

A wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. E. E. Johnson of Kenton. Twenty-four guests were present. The bridal party and immediate families, numbering 12, were seated at a long table centered with chrysanthemums in the pale orchid shade and lighted candles. Three small tables seating the remaining guests, were centered with chrysanthemums in the same shade.

Mr. and Mrs. Parish left on a short wedding trip. The bride wore for traveling a dress of autumn brown and Persian green with a brown broadcloth and fitch fur coat and brown slippers, hat and gloves.

They will be at home at 872 north Prospect street.

New Discovery Makes Possible New Vick Plan of Home-Control of Colds.

REDUCES "COLDS-TAX"

A quarter century ago Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern and better method of treating colds externally. Now, Vick Chemicals develop a new preparation—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—based on a new idea in preventing colds. A perfect ally to VapoRub. It makes possible the new Vick Plan for better Control of Colds in the home—and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax."

Here is the Plan:

1.—Before a Cold Starts

On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold)—at that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Strikes

Use the convenient Vicks Drops during the day—anytime, any place—as often as needed for comfort and relief. At bedtime, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bedclothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This Vick Plan gives you a full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough you will like another new Vick product—Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

Trial Packages Free.

In order that every user of Vicks VapoRub may try the two new Vick products now being introduced, a supply of free trial packages of each has been sent to every druggist in the United States. Go to your druggist today and ask for yours. If, by any chance his supply is exhausted, send us the top of a Vicks VapoRub carton—or coupon from the VapoRub directions folder—and we will mail free samples direct to you, together with a folder on the new Vick Plan for Control of Colds in the home. Author of Club Study Book Talks on European Politics

Unless the United States is to become involved in another World war which is imminent in Europe today, there must be a fuller understanding of the importance of the United States in entering the World court and of actively participating in the disarmament conference in Geneva. Mrs. Laura W. McMullen, author of "Building the World Society," and vice chairman of international relations in the General Federation of Women's clubs, expressed this sentiment in her talks before the Woman's club yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer of White Oaks Farm and last evening before LeMercure club at the home of Mrs. Thomas H. Sutherland of east Church street.

She urged that the women of Marion and of every community in the United States personally write their senator and President Hoover, promising them their support in these two problems confronting the United States today.

Writes Study Book

Mrs. McMullen has made an intensive study of European politics and her book on international relations is the study book of the Woman's club this year.

Her study trip to Europe included England, Belgium, Germany and Austria, where she studied political conditions and the feeling regarding the disarmament conference.

The women she met urged her to bring to the women of the United States the message that unless the United States participates in the disarmament conference, a World war is pending, and that this war if it comes, will be more terrible than anything in the previous war. Science will play its part in future wars, and the two most deadly weapons science has all ready contrived are new poison gasses against which gas masks are useless, and new burning bombs which will annihilate entire cities.

Mrs. McMullen discussed at length the liquor problem in England which has become a vital interest to the leaders of England.

Studies Liquor Problem

"There is three times as much drinking in London than in New York City," she declared. Mrs. McMullen on her visit in London, made it her duty to personally find out what liquor conditions are there.

She found that the money of the liquor trade in England and France is being sent to the United States to influence public opinion in thinking that prohibition is a failure and cannot be enforced, that government control of liquor is the only way out, that beer doesn't harm anyone and that subtly there is to be brought about a return of the saloon.

Mrs. McMullen found that children stand outside the saloons of England, waiting for their mothers and fathers to come out, open to the insults of the drunken men. A man is not considered drunk in England unless he cannot be gotten safely home by a policeman, she said.

Those who suffer most in Europe are the young people. Confidentially, Mrs. McMullen was told by a woman leader of Berlin, that in Germany there has been an average of 40 suicides a week of young men not yet 30 years old, who haven't been able to have the decencies of life because of unemployment.

125 at Luncheon

The Woman's club was entertained at a luncheon by Mrs. Sawyer yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and later, nearly 125 women from the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs were guests to hear Mrs. McMullen. The club will meet Oct. 26 with Mrs. Ward Bones of east Church street.

Mrs. W. N. Hatcher, chairman of international relations in the State Federation, and Mrs. Sawyer, county chairman of international relations in the County Federation, were guests of LeMercure club last evening. Mrs. Hatcher gave a short talk, urging a better understanding of the disarmament conference and World court questions now before the women of the United States, through the General Federation of Women's clubs.

LeMercure club voted to fill Christmas bags for the Red Cross, with Mrs. W. W. Clarke and Mrs. Rex Kilbourne as a committee in charge. Mrs. Robert Mize was named club historian.

At the close of the meeting, lunch was served by the hostess and assisting hostess, Miss Elizabeth Hinklin. The club will meet Nov. 2 with Mrs. Frank Wiedemann and Miss Mabel Balmer at the Wiedemann home at 230 east Walnut street.

CHAPTER 5

On the Stairs

"WHAT else is there?" Venice said. "Mother's always showing me how you can never succeed in anything without popularity."

Drake gave her a long, grave look. There was preoccupation in his stare. He was trying to make out why any one with apparent intelligence should yearn for the empty laurels of purely social recognition. A question of bringing-up of course. Something that had been twisted into her with a stern, insistent dye.

He's stuck with me, Venice suddenly thought. He's been sorry for me and is being kind. I shouldn't have said that people rarely bother with me at parties. She got slowly to her feet.

"You've been nice," she said, proffering a hand.

He took it and held it a moment. Nothing that strong firm clasp of hers he gave her another quick observant glance.

"But where are you going?"

"To—to powder my nose."

"Oh, that's all right." He released her hand and watched her an instant as she went up the stairs. Then he crossed the hall to the living room.

Venice heard some one cry "Hi Drake."

She went slowly into Lola's room and sat down on the bed. She rubbed the hand that he had held and looked at it as though she expected it to appear changed. He was the nicest person that she had ever met. He was so kind and natural and easy to talk to. Had he been sorry for her or had he really liked her? Undoubtedly he had been sorry for her. She had asked for it, telling him right away like that that no one was ever nice to her at parties. She wouldn't go back into the living-room and watch him busy with other girls. She'd sneak away and telephone Lola in the morning to say what a lovely party it had been. How many times she'd told that lie in the last few years. A wry smile caught her lips with the speculation as to whether this would be counted against her in the hereafter. Or did God appreciate and discount such little social niceties?

Walking up Park avenue to Eighteenth street she took deep breaths of the clear air. It was like clean water after a muddy draught. Ann Duryea and her dubious past. Popularity the reward. Great Heavenses sped by appearing omnipotent until a red or green light turned them into obedient servants of the city's laws.

Venice saw Drake Farrelly's clear hazel eyes and wavy hair like carved teakwood. It was dull hair, not shiny. She heard his laugh and felt again the pressure of his hand. How she would have cherished his really liking her. She longed for his appreciation, earnestly desiring his friendship.

Sitting opposite her mother at dinner, smooth candles shining on silver that had only escaped Sherman's march through Georgia by being hidden in a cellar, Venice suddenly hated the decorum and background to which she belonged.

"I have quite a headache," said Mrs. Muir. "I haven't felt really well all day."

"I'm sorry, Mother." Venice's tone was a trifle empty. Her mother continually complained of this small ill or that, trifles that other people wouldn't bother to mention. An ordinary filling at the dentist's became a painful operation in her recounting; a common cold, a really worrying congestion in the chest.

Venice watched her mother eat a hearty dinner.

Three days later something happened that lifted Venice from her monotonous round, made her feel a human being, a individual with private affairs of her own. It was only a telephone call but it gave her a sudden warmth and something to which to look forward.

She was sitting at her splanet desk, woebegonely nibbling at the end of a pencil and trying in vain to work out the second chapter of her book. It wouldn't unfold.

The telephone jangled. She went to the bedside table.

"Hello."

"Hello, may I speak to Miss Muir please?"

"This is Miss Muir."

"Hello, Venice. I'm Drake Farrelly."

"Oh." And she couldn't think of another thing to say. Her heart suddenly quickened.

"Where did you disappear to the other day? Did you lose yourself thinking upstairs?"

"Oh no. I went home."

"Why?"

"I—had a bad headache."

"Ha, it didn't." She heard his infectious laugh. "May I come to see you tonight?"

Her excitement rose and dropped in almost the same heart-beat.

"I am sorry, Drake. I'm going to the Mannings for dinner."

Why couldn't she have shown how disappointed she was? Or at least make her refusal humorous and light?

"Damn," said Drake.

"But there're other nights," she forced herself to laugh quickly.

"Not for some weeks. Hence my blasphemy. I'm going away on business tomorrow."

Venice wanted to say damn too but she only managed, "But you'll call me up as soon as you get back, won't you?"

"Of course I will. And don't you let that inferiority complex of yours grow in the meantime. Some day it'll make a little mouse of you."

"I haven't got an inferiority complex."

"Yes, you have, Venice Muir."

Suddenly she was at ease with him. She laughed.

"That's the first subject for debate when you return. The lion and the mouse. Good-bye, Drake."

She sat looking at the telephone. I wonder how long he'll be gone. All day her mind played about this unexpected conversation. She looked forward to the passing of the intervening weeks something new to anticipate. Not since her debutante days had she had anything to eagerly anticipate.

To Be Continued.

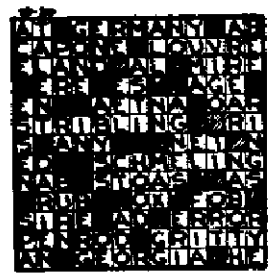
Herewith is the solution to yesterday's puzzle.



"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

A Change in the Condition of the Injured Chinese.

NOT until I reached the door of the farmhouse did I realize that Jim was so close at my heels. He spoke anxiously as I fumbled for the key which I always carry with me.

"Will you tell Mr. Graham, please, that you saw me on the way up to the house. I don't want him to know I told you about his wanting me to take care of you, but I do want him to know I was on the job."

"I'll do that, Jim," I said. "Thank you so much. Good-night."

His answering "Good-night" came to me as I locked the door. The house was dark save for the usual stair and hall lights which we always keep burning and I judged that everybody was asleep except the watcher in the library where the hapless Chinese manager lay. I tip-toed down the hall toward the stairs but before I reached them Harry Underwood opened the door of the library, stepped into the hall and looked around. As he saw me, he came forward swiftly.

"You're the answer to a watcher's prayer," he said. "I hate to route Katrina out, but I think she ought to come down here."

"Do you think he may get well?" I asked.

Madge Refuses Statement

"I don't know," Katherin returned. "I wouldn't have given a nickel for his chance the day they brought him in here. I think they're worth about a quarter now but I'm glad he's recovering consciousness. So long, old girl."

She opened the door and stepped into the hall but I was beside her when she reached the top of the stairs.

"Dicky would ask you where you got that 'so long business'" I said. "I refuse to be treated like a piece of Chinese porcelain any longer."

"Do you mean you're going down with me?" she asked. "Nothing doing lady. Dicky would murder me. He's issued strict orders that you're not to stick your nose inside that room until after your work is done."

"He hasn't even given any orders like that to me," I said, keeping pace with her hurried progress down the stairs, "and I refuse to be bound by any second-hand instructions. Besides, my play is practically done. Two hours' more work at the most will finish it. I really ought to have gone on tonight but I was sleepy and I thought I'd do better work in the morning."

"All the more reason why you should go to bed now," she commanded, but her tone was exceedingly mild and without emphasis.

"Don't waste your breath trying to keep me out of this room," I said, as we reached the door of the library. "I'm coming right along with you."

"All right," she yielded. "We'll probably need your memory at that. He speaks pretty good English, doesn't he?"

"Fair," I observed. "Wait," as she put her hand upon the door. "If he's conscious and can speak English there won't be any reason for bringing that Chinese friend of Harry's out to translate the things he said in his delirium, will there?" she looked at me quizzically.

"Excuse the suddenness but a bit," she said. "I'm also curious to be satisfied with 'nothing' for 'what' any time. Consistently with the fact of there often being before his speaks won't be apt to spill any of them he may have said when he was raving. And I think the chances he may will be very much lessened if—"

PLAIN DISHES "DRESSED UP"

Ordinary Foods Are Made To Appear "Elegant" with Garnishes.

"Surround with asparagus tips and mushroom caps."

"Garnish with chicken livers, pearled grapes, and tiny balls of glazed potatoes."

"Arrange artichoke hearts, small slices of grilled tomatoes, and deviled eggs as a border."

The simplest dish dressed with assorted garnishes looks elegant enough for company, and many a hostess with a modest budget gets a reputation as a superior cook because of her skill with garnishes. Some garnishes fall in the luxury class, true, but since a little goes a long way and since fine garnishes make more palatable the inexpensive wholesome dishes they are, after all, not so extravagant as they sound.

How to Garnish

A quite ordinary meat loaf may be made extremely tempting if sent to table surrounded by numerous colorful garnishes. Slices of grilled tomatoes, broiled mushrooms, asparagus tips, tiny timbales filled with green peas, small sections of bananas broiled, are only a few of the pleasing garnishes. A look in the bushes may be rewarded with numerous suggestions, for sometimes left-overs can easily be transformed into ornamental touches to newly cooked foods.

Among French cooks truffles are an indispensable garnish, and a few added to mushrooms will improve savor as well as appearance. Certainly the planked dishes—steak or fish—require assorted garnishes, and this is perhaps the most practical manner of serving variety to the small family.

Salmon Convenient

A very attractive dish is salmon, which may be served hot or cold, accompanied by many edible garnishes. A thick slice of salmon, weighing anywhere from two to four or five pounds, is cooked in boiling water, to which a few tablespoons of vinegar are added. (This is to keep it from falling apart.) Remove when tender to a hot platter. Surround with many small garnishes—tiny balls of chopped meat, or soft-shell crabs lightly fried, broiled mushrooms, small stuffed tomatoes, tiny browned potato balls, or what have you. The salmon itself can be decorated with long strips of pimento, for color, or slices of stuffed olives.

So simple a garnish as long, thin strips of bread toasted a golden brown, will decorate the dish if skillfully arranged, and increase its attractiveness.

Fried oysters, fried shrimp, or bits of cooked lobster meat are excellent garnishes for fish.

For color a sprinkling of paprika, chopped pimento, minced corsal, chopped parsley, CHOP sauce, yolk of hard-cooked egg, boiled beets, strips of carrot are among a few of the cook's aids.

Shape helps appearance of food, and a set of fancy cutters, rings, stars, crescents, etc., are a modest investment and will assist in adding elegance to quite humble dishes. A meat loaf attractively garnished, beautifully served, may be more palatable than roast duck offered without daintiness.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JESSE M. LEWIS

TODAY was Tuesday, and tomorrow the week will be half gone, and I will be glad of that, though just as glad as I will be when the term is half gone, but that will be quite a ways off yet.

I let Jubilee down by his rope and just as my short britches and went down and done all my work, and Frenchy had his little scrap with him in his pocket, and it was certainly cute. Its eyes was blue beads and he looked at a palm just like he understood what he was saying to him. Frenchy said he was going to name him Ring-Tail, and that would be a good name for him, because he has marks around his tail.

When I had wrapped my shoe around my breakfast and had went out and got the bunch, and the girls were with us, we started up the street to go over to the vacant lot and get our cows and drive them out, and when we got there Mike was there with Old Man Hamilton's cow that he takes care of for two bits a week, and he had a picket off of someone's fence or from her with and make her go, and it was the bunch in French's pocket, and thought it was his bunch for school, and thought he would play a joke on him, so he worked around behind him and then he hooked off with the picket and hooked him on the jump at hard as he could, and we all stopped talking and just stood still whilst Frenchy turned pail and put his hand in his pocket and pulled out the poor little coon, and the poor little fella never knowed what had hit it. It was plum dead.

Frenchy held it up and looked at it for a minute, and Mike looked at it and his face certainly did look funny, and then all at once Frenchy began to holler and dropped the coon and run all over Mike before anybody could hot an eye. Most Mike could. Her Frenchy with one hand and behind him, but not when he killed his pet coon. They rolled over and over punching at each other, and then Mike broke away and got up and said, "I'm sorry, Frenchy—" and then Frenchy was all over him again; so the next time Mike broke away he stood out for all he was worth, and Frenchy after him.

We all sat at the little coon and looked at it, but it was still dead, so we took it around to Mrs. Curtis to see her if she wanted to cook it and eat it like she had his mother, but she said she didn't, so she gave us an old cigar box the best we knew as good we buried it out under the peach tree. The peaches were all pitted, so we got the rubber snake we had learned how to scare the birds and took it to school.

French and Mike came to school and had another fight it seems, but Frenchy had cooled off so much he didn't lick Mike that time, so that's all over with. We tried to find a way to use the rubber snake, but the teacher and everybody is on to it. But we are going to save it.
